Brain Health Consumer Panel

The George Institute is looking to work more closely with health consumers who have a lived experience of stroke, dementia, or any neurological conditions.

Your contribution will help brain health researchers make their research more beneficial, potentially improving the health and well-being of patients.

As part of the Panel, we will ask for your thoughts on both current and new research projects, such as the relevance of research questions, how they are studied, the measurement tools used and how best to share the results with the wider community.

You do not need to have a scientific background or be an expert to contribute. We will provide training and support to ensure that your time and contribution is maximised. Panel meetings are held approx. every 3 months. You will be offered reimbursement for your time.
